NEWS UPDATE · NOVEMBER 2026

A new website, built for everyone

Mobile Disco Network has a brand-new website at mobilediscconetwork.com. It helps people with sight loss, dyslexia, ADHD and epilepsy plan a party, rescues parties when a DJ lets people down, and gives everyone free planning tools.

Tim Daymond
"Tinsel Tim", Mobile Disco Network

It is still Tim at every booking. Tim Daymond has been a DJ since 1976 and founded Mobile Disco Network in 2013. He plays every booking himself across Norfolk, Suffolk, Cambridgeshire and Lincolnshire, and he has never missed one. Tim is Norfolk's only Trading Standards Approved DJ.

ACCESSIBILITY

Help on every page

The new site works with the screen readers that blind and partially sighted visitors already use. Every page has clear headings in a logical order, described pictures and forms that read out properly. As a result, visitors can read about Tim's services and check his diary on their own.

Every page also carries an accessibility toolkit:

- One-click profiles: Epilepsy Safe Mode (removes flashing content), ADHD-friendly and Low Vision
- The whole site in more than 50 languages
- Read-aloud, a dyslexia-friendly font, and adjustable letter spacing and line height
- A reading guide bar, and buttons to pause animations and mute sounds

AT LIVE EVENTS

Sensory-Friendly Disco Mode

Reduced strobe, clear warnings before any flash effect, and a volume agreed beforehand. It is free at any booking, from weddings to birthdays, and never a paid add-on.

NEW

The Panic Button

When a booked DJ cancels or fails to turn up, the Panic Button on the emergency page checks whether Tim's standby disco can reach the venue. It takes the details by WhatsApp or text. While guests wait, it gives the host a holding playlist, words to read out and a checklist for the venue manager.

Wedding and party rescues can be booked up to 6pm on the day, and children's discos by 12 noon.

- Venue Rescue Pass: pubs, halls and hotels print a free pass and QR stickers, so Tim has their access, power and parking before he sets off.
- "Has your DJ confirmed?": a free reminder, three hours before the music starts, for anyone with a party booked.

Tim's standby disco, set up at a venue.
